MILLINERY OPENING

Magnificent Display of Imported and American Productions

We are in complete readiness to receive you, having on display the best selected, the most recherche exhibition of Foreign and Domestic Millinery it has ever been possible for us to present.

The French Artists

Represented Are:

Jeanne Lavin, Marie Louise, Germaine, Louis, Camille Rebeaux, Camille Roger, George, and many others.

India, Persia, Egypt, Japan and many other of the far eastern countries have furnished the style motives of this season. The colorings are rich and decidedly "old world" in combinations, and combined with the dull, rich metal effects, speak of the luxury of the old-world potentates. We cannot do justice to the display in print, but request your presence during the opening.

Wash Fabrics for Fall Washable and Look Like Wool

A glance at these fabrics and you could not distinguish them from those of wool—you must feel them to tell the difference. Special prices for Monday to introduce the new fabrics:

35c Percale Lining for 19c Yard

We Are Ready With Everything Latest and Best in Fall Tailored Attire

In spite of delays caused by the recently closed strike of the garment makers we have secured an exceptionally fine showing of beautiful foreign and domestic garments for your inspection, and shall be glad to welcome you to this department tomorrow.

Two lines seem to be followed out in the winter's styles, one of suits of plain smooth materials, broadcloth for instance, quite ornate in trimming and the rough materials which are almost always made up in severe tailored styles.

Chiffon broadcloths, zibelines, Scotch tweeds, mannish mixtures, English mixtures, basket weaves, camel's hair and chevots.

The coats are all short, 30 and 32 inches long, and the skirts verge upon the hobble style, but are yet practical.

In colorings the predominating tones are blue, brown, gray and green, and these colors are in many different shades from the very dark to quite light hues. Black and navy, of course, lead all others in popularity.

The most popular of the new skirts is that having the plain back and front and the flounce effect at the side.

In the realm of evening dresses the one-piece garment with the veiled overdress is the most popular, and the many combinations possible in these sheer materials of one color over another is beautifully displayed in the garments we are showing.
